Margaret Anglin.

That sterling American actress Margaret Anglin, never fails to inspire her audience with the keenest admiration for her art, but it is doubtful if for a long time she has had a play quite as interesting as "The Woman of Bronze" which will be seen here at the Keith theatre on Wednesday, Febr. 11th.

Just at present the theater is top heavy with what is known as the ingenic star, many of them forced blossoms in process of development, whose principal radiance is reflected in the electric which flash their names in front of the theater. Therefore, Miss Anglin with her splendidly developed art, her wonderful technique and her surety of expression must always be particularly delightful, and in the role of Vivian Hunt in "The Woman of Bronze" she has the opportunity of which she avails herself to the fullest to demonstrate her splendid powers as an emotional actress. That she possesses wonderful artistic ability has been proven by the fact that she takes her present role which the authors have drawn from a somewhat theatrical angle, and infuses it with the depth and sincerity that eliminates all original suggestion of artificiality and presents a real, living, breathing, storm-tossed woman.

"The Woman of Bronze" presents the "eternal triangle" and the story it tells is one that has been duplicated in life, many, many times, and the play possesses many, many scenes that have great dramatic effect. Many of the best known critics have said that Miss Anglin's artistic sincerity has been intellectual sympathy with characters, lifts the play above the theatrical, and is proof of her really splendid gifts.

A very excellent company has been engaged to support Miss Anglin in her new play, among whom may be mentioned Fred Eric, who has been her leading man for a number of seasons, Langdon Bruce, Sydney Nather, Walter Connelly, Harriet Sterling, Sally Williams, Marlon Barney, and several other well known players.

The Present Day Range

UNIVERSAL COMBINATION RANGE

If you want an up-to-date range. If you want a better cooker. If you want a range that has all the modern conveniences—a range that is economical—durable—dependable—beautiful—and simple. If you want a three-in-one range at the cost of an ordinary one-fuel cooker, come in and let us demonstrate the Simplex Universal Combination Range to you.

No parts to change—no danger of mistakes. A simple twist of the wrist changes from coal or wood to gas. The Universal burns coal or wood and gas separately or at the same time—just as you wish. It keeps your kitchen cool in summer and warm in winter. It is just the range for the up-to-date home and housewife. Let us show it to you. You incur no obligations. Come in today.

Investigating Selling Prices

The county chairman of the Nebraska Economy campaign, has been requested to investigate the selling price of oysters in North Platte. This is the first of a series of investigations that will be ordered made as to the selling price of commodities. It is understood the selling price of meats will be reported next. These reports are made to the state fair price commissioner who will determine whether the retail prices in North Platte are sufficiently high as to come under the provisions of the Lever act relative to profiteering. The Lever act as amended last October provides a weapon against profiteering in wearing apparel, fuel, food stuffs and machinery.

Wrestling Match a Draw

After Bobby Bylund of this city and George Kinney, of Spalding had wrestled for two hours at the firemen's hall Wednesday evening without either getting a fall, the event was called a draw by Referee Hastings. The work of both men was active from start to finish; there was no stalling and it was withal a contest that the spectators really enjoyed. Thirty minutes after the match began, Bylund suffered a broken rib, but this did not seem to effect his work to any degree though it caused him considerable pain.

It Pays to Bale the Right Way

THE hay market is always favorable for the man whose product shows up in trim, clean-cut, convenient-sized bales.

International Hay Presses make that kind of bales. They run by horse, motor or belt power. They have capacities of 6 to 30 tons a day.

One and two-horse presses do excellent work on small crops. Both types have the same efficient toggle joint, the same type of plunger head, roller tucker, bale tension, hopper and feed table. The bed reach is only four inches high—horses do not stumble over it.

The International motor press is a two-in-one machine. It is a very fast, convenient and substantial baler. Its 6-H. P. kerosene engine can be disconnected from the bale chamber bed and used as a portable power plant.

The big capacity, all-steel power press is made for custom work and large crops.

With International hay presses you buy International service. This service is especially valuable to the hay grower, whose product must be handled swiftly and seasonably.

One of these types of Internationals is going to please and satisfy you. Let us show you that one.
